

Camillo Lamanna was awarded a Master of Mathematics and Philosophy by the University of Oxford (Magdalen College) with a double first in 2009. In 2013 he was awarded a Bachelor of Medicine and Surgery (Triple Distinction) by King's College London. In 2015 he was awarded a Postgraduate Diploma of Tropical Medicine (East African) with distinction by the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. In June 2019 he was awarded a Master of Public Health (High Distinction) by the University of Sydney. He is a member of the Royal College of Physicians and is qualified in Advanced Trauma Life Support by the Royal College of Surgeons.